Diagram 12 illustrates the correct and incorrect use of a vertical rod (B1) in a corner. The main diagram shows a 3D perspective of a corner formed by two walls and a floor. A vertical rod, labeled (B1), is shown in a circular inset at the top. Three arrows point from this inset to three locations in the corner: the left wall, the floor, and the right wall. Each location is marked with a dashed outline of a person and the label (B1). Below the main diagram are two circular insets. The left inset shows the rod (B1) leaning against the corner, with a blue checkmark indicating this is the correct, safe use. The right inset shows the rod (B1) being pushed into the corner, with a blue 'X' and an exclamation mark indicating this is an unsafe practice. At the bottom left, there are two icons: a boot with a blue 'X' and a foot with a blue checkmark, indicating that bare feet should be worn when using the rod.

A diagram of a house with a gabled roof and a chimney on the right side. Two black stick figures are standing outside the house, one on the left and one on the right. Arrows indicate air flow: on the left, two arrows point from the left towards the house; on the right, two arrows point from the house towards the right. The house is drawn in a simple, schematic style with black outlines.
